What is a Forward Water Market?

Since its launch in March 2014, Waterfind's award winning Forward Market has successfully delivered more than 71GL to clients across Australia.

The Forward Market is an extension of the Spot Market which enables buyers and sellers to lock in a contract for a set volume and price to be delivered at a future date.

Why use Forward Water Markets

Forward Markets are a sound choice for irrigators who value security in their future water seasons. Since their introduction, an increasing number of irrigators have traded their water on Forward Markets to guarantee a price and volume that meets their individual requirements.

You can use the Forward Market to plan ahead with your water requirements and help:

- remove uncertainty
- plan purchases close to use
- secure dates for the lodgment of water trades
- decrease risk in the water market
- no risk of spill
- manage cashflow and purchases around availability

How to use Forward Water Markets

Access to Waterfind's live Forward Water Market is available through your online client account, or by contacting one of our professional water brokers.

Log in to my.waterfind.com.au to access the online market, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Please Note: Each water trading license will need to be approved for use by the Waterfind team.

Payment terms

Deposit and conveyancing fees are due within 7 days of a signed contract. Any outstanding balance, government and water authority fees will be due no less than fourteen days prior to the delivery date.

Temporary forward contracts

20% deposit of the purchase price within 7 days of purchase if the delivery date is within twelve months, and 30% of the purchase price if beyond twelve months.

Sellers will receive full payment (minus fees) on completion of all transfers
